

P.A.T.H. Facilitation & Training in B.C.

The following are a list of possible facilitators and trainers, which may be contacted to facilitate a PATH for your student/child and in some cases provide training for your district staff.

Agencies

- Inclusion Press Inc. Founders are Jack Pearpoint and Marsha Forest.

Inclusion Press are the originators of PATH and provide training materials through manuals and videos. For more information, check out their website at: <http://www.inclusion.com/vdpathtraining.html>

- BCACL (British Columbia Association for Community Living)

Some local associations have staff who are trained to facilitate a PATH for students in local community. Contact your local Association for Community Living to see if anyone is available to assist with facilitating a PATH for your student. You can search for your local site through the general website at: <http://www.bcacl.org/>

- Vela Microboard Association of British Columbia

Vela uses PATH as a cornerstone for the microboard process-helping boards to forge a roadmap for the future and also to figure out the dollars that would be necessary to support an individual so there is no cost if this is part of this service to the family. Some VELA PATH facilitators may be available for staff training, but this is contracted and outside of the normal free service that VELA offers to families. For more information, contact them through their website: <http://www.microboard.org/whatis.html>

Private Individuals

This is one of many private individuals who provide PATH training.

- Don Magill. – Former Retired Resource Teacher, Dawson Creek. Don offers many insights with regards to the entire transition to adulthood process from the perspective of the school and family. Don's e-mail address is: dlmagill@telus.net
